PREFACE

An Educational tour for the first year B.Arch students was organised by L.S.Raheja School of Architecture to Sawantwadi, Maharashtra from 20 Feb 2023 to 26 Feb 2023. Study tours are vital in imparting practical knowledge in students along with their academic studies. The aim of this tour was to aid the students acquire basic knowledge of documentation, technical drawings, regional analysis, vernacular architecture as a response to cultural and climatic influence of a region.

L.S.Raheja School of Architecture has been organizing this educational tour to Sawantwadi since 2007. Over the 16 years, students of F.Y.Barch of the institution have comprehensively documented temple complexes with immense help and support from the locals.

This year, a temple of God Kudaleshwar, at Kudal, was chosen for detailed documentation by students of F.Y.Barch under the guidance of Ar. Arvind Khanolkar, Design Chair of L.S.Raheja School of Architecture, who has been instrumental in planning documentation field work for the institution. This year he was accompanied by, Ar. Sachin Prabhu, Ar. Milind Amble, Ar. Neeta Sarode, Ar. Shraddha Palande and Ar. Deepa Desai. Besides documentation and technical drawings of temple architecture, the tour also encouraged visits to significant structures in the region.

The field work concluded with a visit to Bamboo workshop, where the students learned and firsthand witnessed processing of bamboo plant from start to finish.

The one-week intense educational program was indeed successful through immense efforts of the students and faculty throughout the tour. With the aim of creating a fun and experimental learning environment, L.S. Raheja School of Architecture intends to continue to organize and implement such educational tours within the academic curriculum.

1. JOURNEY TO SAWANTWADI!

The expedition commenced on 20th February, 2023, starting from Lokmanya Tilak Terminus (LTT) Station in Kurla, Mumbai. The destination was Kudal Railway Station in Sindhudurg, encompassing a journey of 480 kilometres completed in a span of 8 hours. The students were required to gather at 11:00 p.m. to board the Madgaon Express train, scheduled for departure at 00:45 AM.

Upon reaching Kudal railway station at 08:38 AM, the students were smoothly transitioned to Hotel Mango in Sawantwadi. The lengthy 8-hour train voyage provided an exceptional opportunity for both students and faculty to engage, forming bonds and interactions. Despite the scorching summer day, the hours were filled with a medley of group games such as charades and Uno, food sharing that spanned homes, ice-breaking sessions among various groups, consistent purchases of refreshing cold beverages and snacks from assorted vendors. All of this culminated in their mental preparation for their inaugural architecture study expedition.

The passage from Mumbai to Konkan was graced with the presence of natural splendor—tranquil flowing water bodies, scenic landscapes, and a refreshing natural breeze. This journey acted as a reprieve from the concrete urban environment, a true immersion into a biophilic setting.

The evening on the train was a delightful interlude, revitalizing the students as they relished the final hours of their railway experience. Disembarking at Kudal around 9 AM, they subsequently transferred to the hotel in a fleet of six minibuses.

2. TEMPLE DOCUMENTATION

The main intent of this study tour was for the students to learn Architectural Documentation using various techniques and drafting Plans, Section, Elevations, Details of the same. The temple, located in Kudal, was selected for this year's documentation. The temple was located around 24.7 km away from Sawantwadi Taluka.

Arulha

A. KUDALESHWAR TEMPLE:

The core purpose of this educational excursion was to enrich students' understanding of Architectural Documentation by immersing them in a range of techniques encompassing drafting Plans, Sections, Elevations, and intricate Details. The chosen focus of this year's documentation initiative was the Kudaleshwar Temples, located near Sawantwadi. These temples offered an ideal platform for hands-on learning.

Nestled in the Sindhudurg district of Maharashtra, India, the Kudaleshwar Temple is situated in the town of Kudal. This town, nestled in the Konkan region, is renowned for its coastal vistas, verdant landscapes, and rich cultural heritage. The well-connected road and rail networks render Kudal easily accessible to both devotees and visitors alike. The temple itself holds a pivotal position within the local community and bears profound religious significance. As is customary with numerous Indian temples, the Kudaleshwar Temple is likely to echo architectural and artistic motifs emblematic of the region and the era of its construction.

Students were systematically organized into distinct teams, each tasked with documenting different facets of the temple complex. This division was based on their specific skills:

Analysis Team: This group delved deeply into comprehensive research not only concerning the temple but also the significant areas surrounding it. Their meticulous examination spanned from macro-level insights to intricate micro-level details, thoroughly unravelling the structure's essence.

Site Section and Plan Team: Employing on-site architectural methodologies, this team skilfully measured the various sections of the temple's location. Their precise measurements culminated in a meticulously scaled site plan.

Temple Plan and Sections Team: Similar to their peers, this group meticulously measured distinct parts of the temple, including the sanctum (garbhagriha) and the assembly hall (sabhamandap). The separation into specialized teams for each segment ensured comprehensive and accurate data for the documentation process.

Elevations Team: This team concentrated on documenting the diverse elevations of the temple, capturing its architectural magnificence from all angles.

Detailing Team: Focusing on the intricate intricacies adorning the temple's walls, doors, columns and windows, this team meticulously documented these details, highlighting the craftsmanship.

Ancillary Documentation: In addition, students diligently recorded the main entrance, the pavilion, and the smaller temple precincts within the site.

Roofing Details and Drawings Team: Recognizing the often-neglected yet crucial aspect of roofing, a specialized team was entrusted with comprehensively documenting the intricate roofing structures, materials, and design specifics.

This strategic division of students into specialized teams resulted in an exhaustive and precise dataset for temple documentation. The students relished this collaborative endeavour, working in teams that not only provided an enriching educational experience but also fostered teamwork and coordination skills.

3. STRUCTURES BEYOND TEMPLE

Housing settlements in Kudal:

The members of the team specializing in analysis were dispatched to investigate the vicinity of the temple's location. During their exploration, they had the opportunity to visit the residence of the Vaidya family, who had been inhabiting the area for several generations. This residential compound consisted of three edifices arranged in a U shape around a central courtyard. The students diligently recorded their observations of this architectural arrangement, as it stood out as one of the most expansive residential properties in the area. In addition, the students also meticulously documented a cluster of smaller dwellings, aiming to gain insights into the disparities in lifestyle and housing among various segments of society.

Paan Bazaar:

The students from team Analysis explored the vibrant area around the temple.

The hustling and bustling streets of paan bazar house the main market close to the temple that got its name due to the distinctly large beetle nut leaf or paan native to the region.

The unorganised commercial fabric of the thoroughfare is apparent as vendors line the streets to sell their traditional regional goods that have been carried forth for generations with Wednesdays being the most active day.

The 3m wide road of the lane is shaded by the ground plus 1 or 2 storied buildings on one side which house mercantile practices at the lower level.

The paan bazaar is also a multicultural confluence with various communities living together and temples, mosques and churches dotting the streets.

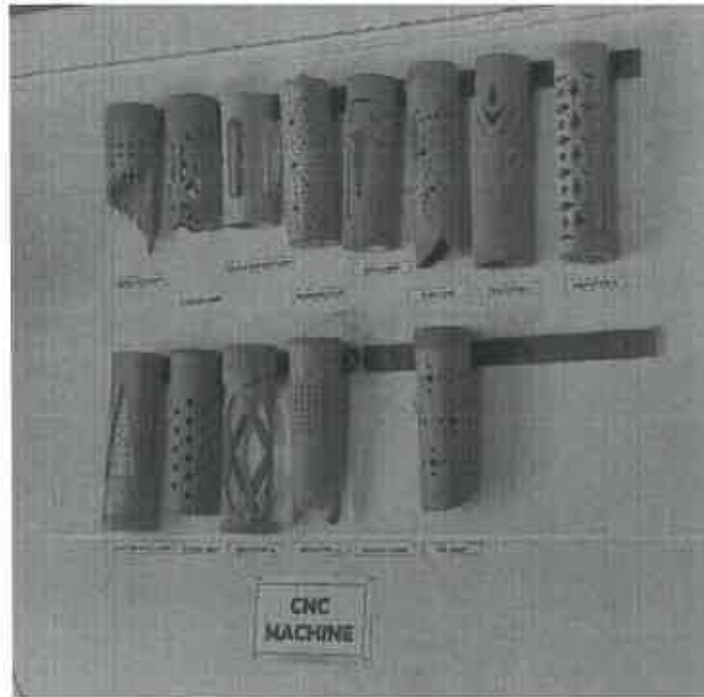

While exploring the area, the students came across a very unique building in the modern context- The Bhatt building. Bhatt building is a perfect example of how the residential buildings are modified into commercial establishment- something prevalent in almost all the structures in the area- all while retaining the historical character of the structure. This building was once a palatial residence was first converted into a dairy in the 1900s and now functions as a commercial warehouse.

4. BAMBOO WORKSHOP

The last day of the trip was an insight into the bamboo industry. The students gained first hand experience into the process of how bamboo is made ready for use in construction and also how it is applied not only to make accessories and furniture but also complete structures at the Konbac Bamboo Factory and the Cluster of Handicraft in Bamboo and Value Addition Research. With Bamboo and its vast application in sustainable architecture, the visit was an important one for the young future architects.

5. INSIGHT

Objectives:

- To learn documentation and Technical drawings by documenting temple in Sawantwadi.
- To create sensitivity towards Konkani and regional Architecture through micro and macro level analysis.
- To visit various structures to understand design, structural members, roof details, architectural elements and details, material used for the structures, climate responsive architecture and vernacular architecture of the region.
- To understand how contemporary architecture can be also influenced by traditional architecture, local materials and culture.

Learnings:

Students exhibited a heightened interest in architecture upon experiencing a variety of structures and architectural marvels in the Konkani region. The educational tour yielded several valuable insights, including:

- Further enrichment of the Rural Narrative Exercise previously introduced in college.
- Comprehensive comprehension of village pathways, traditional residences, and temple architecture.
- Enhanced awareness of environmental factors and local considerations.
- Introduction to the principles of sustainable architecture.
- Profound understanding of intricate architectural blueprints.
- Acquisition of surveying and documentation techniques.
- Development of effective teamwork and time management skills.
- Improvement in presentation abilities.
- Proficient data collection and thorough analysis capabilities.

To Whomsoever It May Concern

Anushka Jadhav has successfully completed her 23 weeks of internship working on variety of Urban design and Architecture projects at Swapnil Patil & Partners, starting from 21st November 2022.

During her tenure, Anushka had an opportunity to be part of our architecture team, working from design development stage to participating in client workshops. As a result, she can now adopt and appreciate the demands of various scales and intricacies involved in large scale architectural projects.

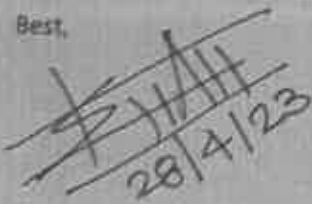

For the last 23 weeks, Anushka assisted the studio in developing construction documents and preparing physical models while working on variety of projects such as,

- Pravara Ayurveda Hospital and Medical College, Loni
- D.Y. Patil International University, Pune
- Shaligram Residential Complex, Pune
- Terna Hospital Extension, Navi Mumbai

In the span of 23 weeks, I have seen Anushka develop her skills. She has availed all the opportunities offered by us to further her knowledge in architecture.

In my experience I have found Anushka to be hardworking and an enthusiastic person yearning to learn more. We hope to see her back into our office after finishing her studies.

CERTIFICATE OF INTERNSHIP

Jinay Mehta, student of L. S. Raheja School of Architecture, Mumbai worked with us as an intern from November 07th, 2022 to May 05th, 2023 and completed 132 working days (6 months) of internship, as agreed upon with us. We highly value this level of commitment.

Jinay is endowed with a rare gift, it's his mature sense of humour and impeccable timing that can put a smile on the face of toughest of seniors and make all conversations with him interesting and delightful. Not just a gift of gab such abilities stem from confidence in his work and skills. He must hone this further to assert and be heard. Another quality we find in him is that of a finisher like Dhoni, a trait we rate very high. Some of the tasks he took up were finished in time against all odds making him a star Intern.

He is ambitious and a hardworking person. He collaborated effortlessly with many agencies and site throughout his internship, which is commendable. Besides his regular architecture drawings, meetings and site visits, he worked on very complex floating staircases in brick where accuracy is most critical, simultaneously checking resolutions in the 3rd dimension. He was a team member in two competitions, one of them an international one. He also printed all important mails for us to check, which is a task given to responsible interns and handled our Instagram page for last 3 months, which is a task in itself.

It's been a joy to have him in our studio and we will miss him dearly. We would love to have him back after his graduation if he chooses to further his career with us. Wishing him the best for his future academic pursuits and hope his growth is further developed in similar working environments.

PREFACE

An educational tour for the first year B.Voc. students was organised by L.S. Raheja School of Architecture to Jaipur, Rajasthan from 31st January, 2023 to 7th February, 2023 to conduct field work. Field work is vital in imparting practical knowledge in students along with their academic studies. The aim of the academic tours are to aid the students acquire basic knowledge of documentation and technical drawings. L.S.Raheja School of Architecture has been organising this educational tour for the B.Voc – ID since 2018.

Over the past 5 years, students of F.Y.B.Voc.- ID. of the institution have comprehensively documented hotel interiors with immense help and support from the faculty. This year the students were accompanied by Ar. Amit Valsangkar, ID. Kaustubh Khanolkar, ID. Prasanna Pandit, ID. Hemant Jain & ID. Gauri Tondvalkar. Besides documentation and technical drawings of hotel interiors, the tour also encouraged visits to significant structures in the region such as the Amer Fort, Hawa Mahal and Jantar Mantar.

The one week intense educational program was indeed successful through immense efforts of the students and faculty throughout the tour. With the aim of creating a fun and experiential learning environment and team work, L.S.Raheja School of Architecture B.Voc-ID intends to continue to organise and implement such educational tours within the academic curriculum.

STUDY TOUR

The First Year Study tour to Jaipur is a measure, drawing and documentation tour which gives the students hands-on experience in measuring and drafting appropriate drawings as per actual on-site design and understanding the nitty gritty of the structure and Interior Furniture Details. After the completion of the study tour the students were taken to Local sightseeing to places of architecture and interior interests.

Handwritten signature

Visit to Amer Fort

The fourth day of the study tour was a visit to historic structures in and around Jaipur. The intent was to allow the students to explore traditional Rajput architecture. The students visited the Amer Fort and Hawa Mahal, which are splendid examples of Rajput architecture. The fort was constructed using elements such as arches, domes and delicate ornamentations. The Hawa mahal is built in pink sandstone that is locally available.

Visit to Jantar Mantar

After visiting the Amer fort and Hawa Mahal, the students were then taken to Jantar Mantar where they learnt how astronomical data, movement of sun, moon and planets and time was observed and determined.

INSIGHTS

□ Objective: -

- To Learn Documentation and Technical drawings by documenting hotel Interiors in Jaipur.
- To understand design, structural members, aesthetical elements, architectural elements and details, local material used for the structures.

□ Learnings:-

The students are more oriented towards Interior Architecture on getting exposure to various structures.

The following were the learnings they were able to get through the process of this educational tour:

- A continued learning of the Rural Narrative Exercise, which the students learnt at college.
- Detailed understanding of Interior details, hotel services and material knowledge.
- Surveying and Documentation methodologies.
- Teamwork and time management.
- Presentation skills.
- Collection of data.

Dear Rubuja Jora,

In reference to your application, we would like to congratulate you on being employed for the job opening with Palindrome Spaces as Intern. We heartily welcome you onboard! We vouch for an engaging & fruitful experience to say the least as you find yourself associating with Palindrome Spaces.

Your Internship Period at Palindrome Spaces commences effective date 22nd December 2023 for a period of 6 months based on Contractual Details whenever signed.

In terms of scope of work, your tenure here will include orientation and focus primarily towards enhancing skill sets in the sphere of Architectural Interior Design Practice. Hence strengthening your understanding of practical & theoretical concepts, through the means of your involvement with varied professional tasks undertaken by the firm in realms of Design & Execution. At Palindrome Spaces, we believe in investing our supreme most measure of creativity when it comes to the creation of spaces & niches for our clients. The spaces we dwell in are synonymous with the reflections of our true beings. For it isn't a mere interplay of brick & mortar; we strive to breathe life into one's dreams through means of honest creative hard work to fabricate spaces that matter.

The firm works relentlessly to stay true to a few Core Values that act as guiding forces & inspire us to out-do ourselves every day. Reliability when it comes to high quality of workmanship, Integrity that's emanated from our work ethic & delivery, Truth & Honesty in all aspects of practice are just a few to mention. The Client in our perspective is the ultimate, closest to God. Our efforts and curations are eventually holistically directed towards providing the end-user with all their needs infused with impeccable design solutions.

All we ask of you is to bring along with you your most enthusiastic, knowledge-hungry self, a dash of punctuality, your best dressed self (because if you look good, you feel good right?) & your widest smile to brighten up everyone's day at work! As a proprietor, I can assure you that it would be my pleasure if we could establish open communication regarding all thoughts, ideas & creative impulses that come to your mind. Feel free to have any sort of discussion with us, making sure you leave all inhibitions at the door. Hope to see you soon & we eagerly look forward to forging a long-lasting tie-up with you as we create, collaborate & iterate together.

Re: Work Experience Letter

To whomsoever it may concern,

I am writing this letter to provide a formal recommendation and endorsement for Mr. Sanjeev Wadach based on their outstanding performance during their 6-month work experience at SNZ Designs Pvt. Ltd. Throughout their tenure, Sanjeev exhibited exceptional dedication, creativity, and professionalism, making valuable contributions to our interior design projects. He joined the company on 15th January 2023 as a Junior Interior Designer and managed to create 2D-3D drawings, mood boards and presentations for various projects and participated in various material selections.

Moreover, he supervised various sites, ensuring smooth workflow and adherence to project specifications. He possessed key ability to collaborate with vendors and contractors, ensuring positive relationships and effectively communicated with suppliers to address material and hardware requirements on different sites, ensuring the timely completion of projects. Additionally, he actively participated in site security and fire-safety teams, maintaining a professional work environment. He displayed a keen willingness to learn and adapt and ability to effectively manage and coordinate different tasks on-site, leading to enhanced project efficiency and customer level reports.
